Miscarriage

A Guide for Parents

Denise M. Paul MA, CT, CPLC

My intention for creating this booklet is to address the unmet need of acknowledging and supporting parents who have lost their baby through miscarriage.

As a Perinatal Loss Grief Specialist, I have learned that miscarriage is a disenfranchised loss, because it is seldom acknowledged by society. Family and friends tend to minimize the importance of miscarriage, and women are not given permission to talk about it, which leaves them grieving alone.

This booklet answers important questions and offers suggestions on how to navigate the grief journey, in an easy to read, respectful way. It is available for distribution to patients who have experienced the loss of a baby before the 20th week of pregnancy.
