Miscarriage and Stillbirth

Denise M. Paul MA, CT, CPLC

A Guide for Parents

My intention for creating this booklet is to address the unmet need of acknowledging and supporting parents who have lost their baby through miscarriage or stillbirth.

As a Perinatal Loss Grief Specialist, I have learned that losing a baby before birth is a very difficult topic to talk about and parents are often left grieving alone.

This booklet addresses topics such as: the possible causes of miscarriage and stillbirth, the grieving process, mom's grief vs. dad's grief, how parents can support each other, rituals of remembrance, talking to children about perinatal loss, what to do with baby items and the nursery that has been prepared, and navigating the first year after the loss. Important information is addressed in an easy to read, respectful way. It is available for distribution to patients who have experienced the loss of a baby at any time during the pregnancy.
